

Jay -

You are one of the quietest kids - and one of the finest.
You have a very distinct quality - goodness - and generosity and a remarkable potential for empathy and compassion. The year has been a more profitable one for me because I have gotten to know you and for Chintreke - don't ever stop believing that you're not a person with an infinite ~~poss~~ potential to achieve anything you want to. You have so very much to offer Jay - and I know you will use it well.

With much love and affection -

Mike Garfield

CHERRY PIT

For thirty years, Lettie Lee Craid has served Cherry Lawn students as teacher, counselor, guide and friend.

Her standards and ideals are lofty—loftier than the towering pines of her beloved northwest from whence she came. They create a high point on the horizon to guide innumerable students in their moments of faltering and doubt. Her deep dedication to the school and her devotion to its students were always a hallmark of these years at Cherry Lawn, and they will continue so, we hope for a long time to come.

No one remembers so many Cherry Lawners so well and over such a span of time. Her understanding, sympathy, and concern for each individual student constitute a rare combination of traits which makes her very important in individual lives. Although she is sometimes considered a harsh and demanding taskmaster, who insists that things be "right", any apprehensiveness vanishes on Commencement Day, when she is probably more fully understood than at any other time. Her measure as an educator lies in the emotions and expressions of appreciation by alumni who return to campus—"She gave importance, and direction, and meaning to our lives."

So to you Mrs. Craig we dedicate this Cherry Pit.

AUTUMN'S END

She came to rest within the film of tired eyes
So long ago exhumed with lidless gaze.
She lay with hooves "wakening against the shore;
circling lips of comfort for the leaves.
Soon she would be stilled by icefoot dreams and falling, would her mane be chilling strands.

... Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down today.
Nothing gold can stay

—Robert Frost

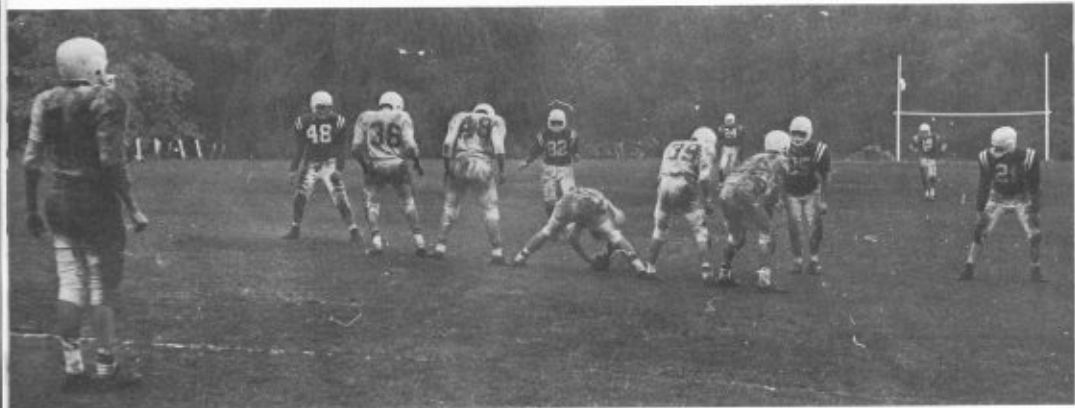

"not even for a moment can a man be without action"

"Action is greater than inaction:
perform therefore thy task in life.
Even the life of the body could not be if there were no action."

—Bhagavad Gita

They say that the power of the senses is great.

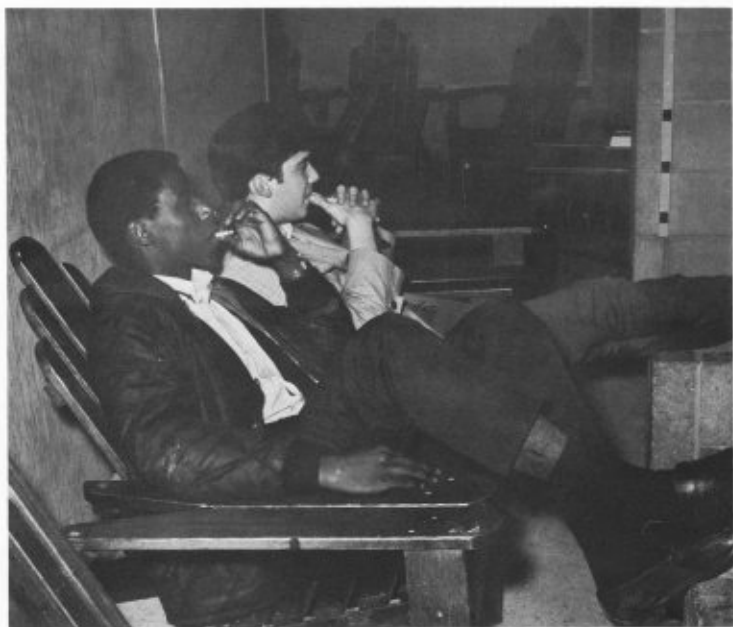

But greater than the senses is the mind.
Greater than the mind is reason;

and greater than reason is He—the Spirit in man and in all."

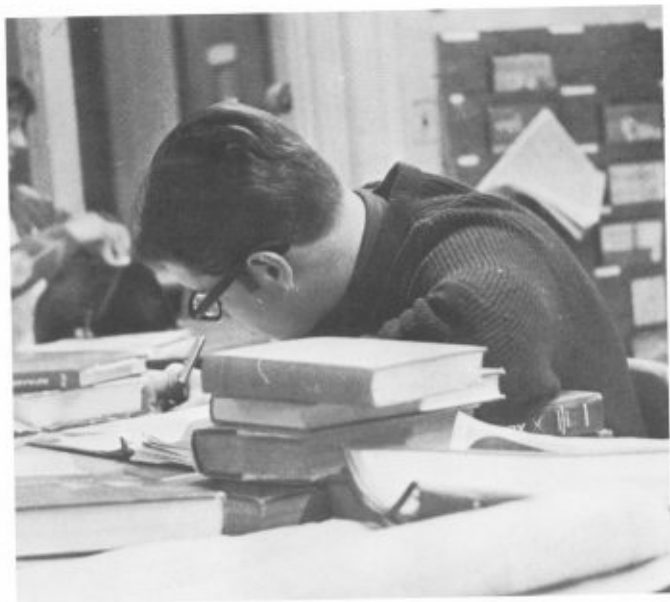

"Among the men and women the multitude,
I perceive one picking me out by secret and divine signs, Acknowledging none else,
Some are baffled, but that one is not—that one knows me.

That he who learns now the sun and moon
 Of his mother's milk may return
 Before the lips blaze and bloom
 To the birth bloody room
 Behind the wall's wren
 Bone and be dumb
 And the womb
 That bore
 For

All men
The adored Infant light or
The dazzling prison Yawn to his upcoming.
In the name of the wanton Lost on the unchristened mountain
In the centre of dark I pray him

Dylan Thomas

"My surface is myself.
Under which to witness, youth is buried. Roots?

Everybody has roots.

We go on living, we permit ourselves to continue—but certainly not for the university, what they publish severally or as a group: clerks got out of hand forgetting for the most part to whom they are beholden.

spitted on fixed concepts like roasting hogs, sputtering, their drip sizzling in the fire

Something else, something else the same."

—Wm. Carlos Williams

Child, ignorant of the true happiness,

Nor knowing life's best wisdom, Thou wert made

For light and love and laughter, not to waste

Thy youth in shooting arrows at the sun . . .

—Oscar Wilde—

Jove in the clouds had his inhuman birth.
No mother suckled him, no sweet land gave Large-mannered motions to his mythic mind.
He moved among us, as a muttering king,
Magnificent, would move among his hinds,
Until our blood, commingling, virginal,
With heaven, brought such requital to desire
The very hinds discerned it, in a star.
Shall our blood of paradise? And shall the earth
Seem all of paradise that we shall know?
The sky will be much friendlier then than now.
A part of labor and a part of pain,
And next in glory to enduring love,
Not this dividing and indifferent blue.

Have you learn'd lessons only of those who admire you,
and were tender with you,
and stood aside for you?

Have you not learn'd great lessons from those who reject you, and brace themselves against you?
or who treat you with contempt, or dispute the passage with you?

the bare trees were ships the sky and the snow one great sea yet i saw colours in that ocean colours i never saw before colours i never knew existed brilliant blues, quiet browns

 a new universe that was hidden from my sight

Inscription

this hill and every inch of snow on it is consecrated one would not think so it appears to be just a hill overlooking a city but here two lovers came one day here two souls came as one they laughed, they ran, they smiled, they kissed they held each other so close that no force on earth could separate them if ever you see this hill regard it with awe for it is sanctified for here two souls came as one and loved

EXCELLENCE?

To everyone, language needn't be a barrier my feet seem to wallow in the slush as i walk down the lane it should not be so; my feet should fly down an endless white hill with only trees to bear witness O white dream this world is a never-ending insanity so glad that you could come once more and cast your spell of sweetness over a brutal world

And only the

I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch wherethrough Gleams that untravelled world, whose margin fades Forever and forever when I move.

Dear Seniors,

"These are the times that try men's souls," wrote Thomas Paine in 1776. This brief statement has held true in many places and for many people during the years from then until now and it is, I believe, true for you today—and for me, too. The "American Dream," about which so much has been said and written, still remains the goal toward which we, as individuals and as a nation, strive and the obstacles which try our souls and deter our achievement, though in many ways different, are none the less real and constantly challenging.

What is each of you doing to become a better person, more honest, helpful, considerate, understanding, reliable, loving, lovable? Are you really trying to bring all your many talents, intellectual, creative, and personal, into full function at the highest possible level? To quote from a book I recently read: "Maturity is not a destination like Hong Kong, London, Paris, or heaven. It's a continuous process, rather like a road along which one travels. There's no Maturity Town, U.S.A.!"

As you leave Cherry Lawn my sincere wish and hope for each and every one of you is that you will travel along this road, always remembering the values and standards of excellence for which Cherry Lawn exists and works and has tried to help you toward attainment. It is not an easy road but can be a beautiful and deeply satisfying one.

Always devotedly yours,
LETTIE LEE CRAIG
Dean

Dear Seniors:

The lines from Lewis Carroll that precede the Cherry Lawn statement of objectives seem not only appropriate for prospective Cherry Lawners but for those graduating as well. The truth is, they are appropriate all our life long.

Alice asks: "Will you tell me which way I ought to go from here?" Isn't that the eternal question asked by all except those who just don't care?

And isn't the cat's answer, "That depends on where you want to get to," one which we must constantly turn unto a question to ourselves?

How many of us know what we want or where we want to get to? Wherein we know now or later depends largely upon our values and ideals.

For those who choose to live in an a-moral and godless world wherein life is an accident and man has nothing to rely upon other than his own miserable devices — they cannot help but wander blindly and hopelessly toward a meaningless doom.

The alternative is there to be chosen. You can elect life rather than a living death. You can affirm and assert those values which alone give life its meaning — reverence for life in all its forms, love of beauty, compassion, all that broadens the horizons of life and lengthens the shorelines of wonder.

At the moment in his life when all of the material accumulations of his entire family were wiped out by a stranger's single act of irresponsibility, the young Sikh was able to brush aside my commiseration because, he said, his father had taught him one thing beyond value: "A man was wealthy only in proportion to those things which he could do without." He had learned to travel light, however richly. That thought was undoubtedly the most valuable thing that I brought back from a journey of many months and thousands of miles. And I have been a better traveller for it.

Quo vadis? . . . Whither goest thou? And why? I fervently pray that your replies will be noble ones worthy of your very best selves. No one could ask for more; you must strive for nothing less.

Sincerely yours,
A. A. Medved
